Negro Miners Fail to Arrive to Take the Place of Strikers.

ALL THE NEWS FROM NEARBY TOWNS

ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH. HUNTINGDON, September 11, - John Smith, Jr., a member of the firm of S. S. Smith & Son, druggists, was convicted here to-day for furnishing liquor without a license on the prescription of Dr. George D. Ballantine, a practicing physician of this city, who, it was alleged by the Commonwealth, was acting in collusion with Druggist Smith to evade the law.

On the foot of the prescription the following was printed, which the person receiving the prescription would sign: "I hereby affirm that this material shall be used for medical nurnoses and not as a beverage." This, the Court held, did not exempt a druggist or physician from the legal penalty of the law's violation. Dr. Ballantine will be tried on

MINING TROUBLES.

The Situation in the Punxsutawney Region is Still Very Much Mixed.

(SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE.) PUNXSUTAWNEY, September 11 .- The men brought here on Monday by the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Coal and Iron Company to act as policemen to protect the con pany's property at the Walston and Adrian mines, all left to-day. They came here with the idea that they were to guard a railroad crossing against the Pennsylvania company, and when they learned the true state of affairs they refused to be sworn in, being composed principally of laboring men, and they would not permit themselves to be used as instruments to defeat their beat the best of the state of the state mit themselves to be used as instruments to defeat their brother laborers.

Four hundred negroes from Pocahontas, W. Va., were expected here to-day, but as they have no one to protect them they are not likely to come. The English speaking miners say they would not resort to violence under any circumstances, but the Hungarians and Italians would be for war to the knife. They are all armed with revolvers and knives, and when remand are not afraid to face death. It is the all armed with revolvers and knives, and when proused are not afraid to face death. It is the general opinion that if an attempt is made to put colored men and foreigners into the mines under guard that a sanguinary riot will be the result.

A PROBABLE MURDER.

The Mysterious Disappearance of a Huugarian Too Sick to Walk. PSPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCHA

BEAVER FALLS, September 11,-Since Sunday last ugly rumors have been affoat that a Hungarian named Michael Ritz had been mur-The story was to the effect that Ritz, being sick for the last three months and unable to pay his board, the boarding bouse keeper, to get rid of him, tied him hand and foot last Saturday night, and then, in company with others, kicked and beat him till he died. The inster was put in the hands of the police to-day, and this afternoon eight Hungarians, supposed to be implicated in the affair, were arrested and locked up. That the man was tied, then beaten and kicked brutally, it is said can be fully proven, as a number saw it done.

Ricked brutally, it is said can be fully proven, as a number saw it done.

The man has been missing since Saturday, and the doctor who was attending him in his sickness says he was too sick to go away himself. The police are making a vigorous search for the body. The house has been searched, the vaults dragged and the lot in several places dug up, but no body has been discovered. The men arrested will say nothing.

FRAUDULENT VOTERS.

Democratic and Republican Office Holders in St. Louis on Trial.

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCE. ST. Louis, September 11 .- St. Louis politicians are greatly excited over the sessions of the Federal grand jury and the trials now in progress in the Federal Courts. Two months ago a score of prominent office holders were indicted for irandulently making voters of men who were not qualified to vote. Among the office holders indicted were Philip H. Zepp, Democratic Clerk of the Circuit Court; Julius Lehman, Republican member of the House of Delegates; James Garnier, Republican Deputy Sheriff: Martin Neiser, Democratic City Marshal; Barney Thorman and Geo. Bockers, both in the employ of the city, and Charles F. Meade, the Mayor's secretary. Lehman's case was tried first and he was convicted, much to the surprise of the other defendants. Garnier's case is on trial today. It is rumored that many more office holders, both Republican and Democratic, will come in for indictments in a few

GEN. PEARSON'S SPEECH

The Pittshurg Here of the Gallant 155th Delivers the Oration Dedicating Their Monument - Glowing Words to the Gettysburg Survivors. ISPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATOR. GETTYSBURG, September 11 .- The speech of General A. L. Pearson, of Pittsburg, the orator and historian of the gallant One Hundred and Fifty-fifth Zouaves, was remarkable in many respects. In a number of the actions where the fame of the regiment was won, he was its commander. Bates' history speaks in the highest terms of his conspicuous gallantry on many fields; but in his speech the personal pronoun I did not occur a single time. It was as if he felt that his old comrades knew his record. He seemed content with that, disdaining self exaltation. In opening he said: It has been well said that from the beginning the living have paid homage to the virtues of the dead: for immortality is the dream of man. Scarce a city, town or village but contains some monument designed to perpetuate the memory of one who has passed from earth. Mountains have been excavated, pyramids built, temples have been erected, and granite, marble and bronze shaped into every conceivable form to give expression to honor, respect, affection and love for some dead hero-warrior, statesman or philosopher. These earthly tributes can be of no service to the dead, but THEY FORM LASTING RECORDS of deeds held honorable among men; are strong incentives to noble acts in the present, and mark a steady progress toward that better con-dition which is the ultimate destiny of the buman race." How aptly these words, ringing with the natural eloquence of a high and noble spirit, fit this occasion, as they will fit all occasions where brave men, living, assemble to honor the memory of heroic men, dead. You are here to-day to formally dedicate to the memory of your fallen comrades this beautiful meanment.

After a brief allusion to their experiences After a brief allusion to their experiences at Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville and to the brigading of the One Hundred and Fifty-fifth with Sykes's regulars, the General pressed forward to that period of the regiment's history embraced in the action at Gettysburg. The General said: Meade, Pennsylvania's noble son, your gallant corps commander, has been placed in command of the army. Sykes takes the corps, and Roman B. Ayres, your splendld brigade commander, assumes command of the division, while Weed, the dashing soldier, is placed in command of the brigade. Northward still you go, and on July I you hear the distant sound of battle. The gallant Reynolds has met the enemy at Gettysburg, and knowing that he is fighting on the sacred soil of his own State, he, with his accustomed boldness to attack, did not hesitate as to his duty, or wait for instructions. The battle was on. The first corps had pushed through the town intending to occupy the hill on the west side, when it

ENCOUNTERED THE ENEMY in strong force. Reynolds quickly rode for-ward to change the position of his batteries, but at that moment the rebel infantry ad-vanced and charged upon the guns, no doubt expecting to capture them. Reynolds saw the movement, and at once put hinself at the bead of Wadsworth's division to direct and encourage the troops. His conspicuous gallantry age the troops. His conspicuous gallantry made him a prominent mark for the deadly bullet, and he fell, shot through the neck, and died before he could be taken from the field. Even there where heroism was the rule, his conduct was respiendent with the luster of magnificent bravery.

General Doubleday assumed command, and led the corps forward and repulsed the enemy in a gallant charge, but his success was of short duration, for Hill had pushed forward and displayed his entire command in front of the first corps. Although Lee had over 50,000 troops on the field, he failed to attack Howard, who had command of all the Union troops at the front, and thus the first day's battle was ended.

The morning of the 2d was spent in bringing up the artillery and awaiting the arrival of Sedgwick's corps, who arrived, after a march of 30 miles, at about 3 o'clock. The other corps had arrived before daylight. Slocum's Twelfth corps was on the right, Newton with the First on the right centre, the Eneventh in the centre, Hancock's Second on the left centre, the Third on the left and the Fifth, under Sykes, held in reserve, while the Sixth was moving up towards the left.

WHAT THEY HAD TO MEET. Lee had concentrated his army at Gettysburg. Ewell was posted on the left opposite Slocum, Hill in the center and Longstreet on the right. At about to clock everything was ready for the attack. A furious artillery fire was opened on the Third corps, and Longstreet's men in gray began to come out of the woods and advance against the front and flank woods and advance against the front and flank of General Sickles in solid masses. The desperate attack being observed the Fifth Corps, which a few days before Meade had commanded in person, was pushed forward, and Sykes found his line on the left of Hancock. This furious onslaught caused Sickles' corps to fall back, followed by the rebel column, which soon came under the fire of Hancock's guns, which began a terrific discharge of shell and canister. Defying death, on they came almost to the muzzies of the guns.

While this terrible conflict was in progress, Warren, seeing the vital necessity of holding little Bound Top, ordered two of his batteries and Weed's brigade to double quick to that important point.

It was there and then that the One Hundred important point.

It was there and then that the One Hundred and Flity-fifth achieved immortality. There they ensbrined themselves in a glory, that will never fade while love for patriotic valor lives in the human heart. With a heroism that made every man a Titan they accomplished, in the teeth of fate, what, to men less brave or determined, would have been the impossible.

HOW MUCH IT RECALLS.

Gettysburg! What memories cluster around that word! The great turning battle of the that word! The great turning battle of the Robellion—the battle where thousands of brave men, fighting for country, for law, for government, for constitution, for right, for freedom, for humanity, gave their hear!'s blood that the banner of their country should be unsullied, and always wave in undiminished glory.

Gettysburg! made forever historic by Pennsylvania's heroes, Meade, Reynoids, Hancock. You stand upon the spot to-day, comrades, that is hallowed by the blood of Weed, O'Rorke and Harlett, and made sacred by the blood of your conrades who fell fighting in defense of the old flaz. There the gallant Warren stood, a man whose character as a soldier and a man was noble and knightly, and for all ages he will in bronze stand upon the look-out at Round Top in serence contemplation of the field he helped to win.

A CONCLUDING APOSTROPHE. Here General Pearson enumerated 28 battles, not counting akirmishes too numerous to men-tion, in which the regiment participated down

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bettles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."

510, 512, 514 MARKET ST. AND 27 FIFTH AVENUE. DRUNKENNESS

Or the Liquor Habit Positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of college or tea without the knowledge of the person taking it is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholle wreck. Thousands of Drunkards have been made temperate men who have taken Golden Specific in their conce without their knowledge and to-day believe they quit drinking from their own free will. If NEVER FALLS. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist. For sale by A. J. Rankin, Sixth and Penn ave., Pittsburg, E.
